Philanthropic Activities

Environmental Preservation

Focusing on the Environment

Mitsubishi Electric was early to start focusing on environment-related responsibilities. Back in 1960 the company started implementing manufacturing processes that consciously strived to reduce waste. Over the subsequent decades Mitsubishi Electric developed purification and recycling technologies that we not only use ourselves, but also make available to other manufacturers. For more information on Mitsubishi Electric's environmental policies, practices and products, click here.

The 3Rs

Our mantra is Reduce, Reuse, Recycle. We put these "3Rs" into practice every day, at every level of the company. And on a global scale, too. It starts with internal communications designed to ensure not only that each individual employee is mindful of environmental concerns on a daily basis, but that the company diligently maintains its ISO qualifications. It continues with product design and development processes that cut waste and reduce energy needs, with manufacturing processes that meet or exceed RoHS and other regulations, and with logistics initiatives that reduce harmful effects on the environment during product distribution. And it results in products that consist of energy-efficient components and in some cases 100 percent recycled plastics, as well.

Eco-Products

Mitsubishi Electric is at the forefront of the manufacturing of eco-products, or products that conform to environmental standards or contribute to environment conservation. Like air conditioners that save energy and reduce impurities in the air of indoor environments.

New compact electric motor technologies that are highly efficient.

Combination washer-dryers that reuse heat generated during the drying process. Machine-room-less elevators that save energy and building space.

Photovoltaic panels and complete solar solutions for homes and businesses that allow the reselling of excess energy back to the local power grid.

Highly efficient mini-hydroelectric generators that can produce electricity from the water flow of small rivers.

And much, much more. The stated goal of the entire group of Mitsubishi Electric companies is to develop and introduce to various markets eco-products and hybrid eco-products with improved eco-efficiency that reduces negative environmental impact throughout the entire product lifecycle.

A Socially Responsible Investment

Mitsubishi Electric's environment preservation activities have gained the attention of organizations around the world that believe that environmental sustainability is not just a moral imperative by individuals and corporate entities, but simply makes good business sense. Portfolio 21, a global mutual fund that invests in companies making real contributions to a sustainable future, has rated Mitsubishi Electric number four in its Top 10 "Green" Companies of 2005.

Hyper Cycle Systems

The Electric Household Appliance Recycling Law that went into effect in Japan in April 2001 emphasizes the importance of creating a sustainable society -- that is, a society that effectively utilizes regenerated resources made from materials such as metal and copper retrieved from used home appliances. Mitsubishi Electric established Hyper Cycle Systems Co. as a means to achieve that goal. Hyper Cycle Systems accepts a variety of appliances, breaks them down, and processes the resulting materials into reusable resources. As the company's experts continuously improve the efficiency and reliability of the recycling process, they provide manufacturers with qualitative feedback that can be put to immediate use -- especially during the new product design phase, in order to devise products that can be more easily recycled.

The Mitsubishi Medaka

The old River Matsumoto in Fukuoka, Japan, famed for its abundant killfish ("medaka") that thrive and multiply every spring, runs right through a Mitsubishi Electric factory site, and draws its waters from rains and resulting runoff, as well as drain water flow from the factory. Yet the waters remain so pure that every spring local inhabitants enjoy the riverbanks that fill with field horsetails and the abundance of killfish that have come to be known as the "Mitsubishi Medaka." The company takes great pride in this living testimony to its environmentally responsible manufacturing efforts.

Disaster Relief

There When People Need Us the Most

When disaster strikes, quick response means the difference between life and death. And for victims, suffering and inconvenience can last a lifetime. Mitsubishi Electric has been increasing its philanthropic aid to areas afflicted by natural disasters like earthquakes, inclement weather, and more. These include direct financial and material contributions by the company, financial contributions by individual employees with matching funds provided by the company through SOCIO-ROOTS, and volunteer efforts by individual employees.

Hurricane Katrina

In late August 2005 a major storm surge caused by Hurricane Katrina wreaked havoc along the coastlines of Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama in the United States. The levees separating Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans were breached and about 80 percent of the city went underwater. More than 1,400 people have been confirmed dead and another 3,200 remain unaccounted for, possibly swept out to sea. Thousands more were evacuated from New Orleans and other areas to various shelters and homes throughout the United States.

Mitsubishi Electric's Hurricane Katrina disaster relief efforts have included donations by individuals along with matching funds by the MEAF's Starfish Matches program, generating more than $43,000 for victims. MEAF also gave $10,000 to the Disability Funders Network Disaster Relief Fund to assist people with disabilities affected by disaster. MEAF and Mitsubishi Digital Electronics America representatives helped facilitate the donation of 16 HDTVs to go to schools serving special-education students on the Mississippi Gulf coast. In addition to such cash and materials donations, employee volunteers collected food, blankets, and other essential items to send to the stricken region.

"I learned about your generous contributions to help the victims of Hurricane Katrina. I appreciate your efforts, and our whole Nation is grateful for your kindness... The good works of Mitsubishi Electric demonstrate the character and great strength of our Nation."
